Arts Community Opens Doors To Host Pop-Up Donor Centers

The stage is set for critical blood donations.

Seattle, WA —As local hospitals resume surgeries, medical treatments, and procedures that require transfusions, patient blood needs have surged to pre-COVID 19 levels. In partnership with Bloodworks Northwest, the arts community extends an invite to their next act, an exhibition of human kindness and care. STG's Paramount Theatre, the National Nordic Museum, Bellevue Arts Museum, and Seattle Rep have all answered the call and will transform into instant Pop-Up Donor Center experiences in an effort to support the blood supply and ensure a seamless restart to these procedures.

Each organization joins the list of venues utilizing their community spaces to provide a lifeline for local patients. Social distancing recommendations have put a strain on opportunities to donate, as traditional blood drives and bloodmobiles are temporarily unavailable. Bloodworks has turned to an innovative alternative with Pop-Up Donor Centers that are held in a large setting, allowing higher level of space and safety for donors and staff.

Donors will be treated to unique perks at each Pop-Up, like extra takeaways from canteen sponsors like Starbucks, Premera, Orangina, and Yerbae. Those who give at the National Nordic Museum Pop-Up will be treated to two free admission tickets and donors at the Bellevue Arts Museum will receive a $5 discount to the gift shop featuring works from local artists.

First-time and repeat donors are urged to make their one-hour donation appointment today as a safe and essential action to support local patients. In accordance with current social distancing guidelines, only scheduled appointments will be allowed. No walk-ins, guests, or people under age 16 are permitted onsite. Donors are asked to bring a mask/face covering to their donation. All blood types are urgently needed, but Type O is especially in demand.

"Bloodworks mission supports everyone in our community, every day. Just like the blood supply, the arts community has been severely impacted by the current public health crisis," said Bloodworks President & CEO Curt Bailey. "Live performances and exhibitions enrich our lives in so many ways and now the venues will literally be giving life to many ill and injured patients. The Pop-Ups will provide an opportunity for over 1,000 community members to give blood in a beautiful setting and better our community at a really crucial time.”

“During these times when so many of us are struggling to find our place in a world full of loss, we are opening the doors of The Paramount in hopes that it can once again be used for the good of the community,” says Josh LaBelle, Executive Director of STG. “We invite the public to come together at this historic gathering place to help support Bloodworks’ vital mission of saving lives through the act of donating blood.”

“Part of our commitment to Nordic values is to help the broader community. We’re very grateful for Bloodworks Northwest’s important contribution to public health and happy to assist them during this uncertain time,” said Eric Nelson, CEO and Executive Director of the National Nordic Museum.

"We are honored to have BloodworksNW in our building during the month of August. Supporting an organization that saves lives by encouraging blood donation for local patients aligns with Seattle Rep's vision of theater at the heart of public life," said Seattle Rep Director of Arts Engagement Nabra Nelson. “While our stages are dark, we are grateful for this opportunity to share our space and support the medical field during this critical time.”

Donors of all blood types are still needed every day to make an appointment to give blood in support of cancer patients, trauma victims, premature babies, or to treat severely ill COVID-19 patients, among others.

Bloodworks has posted information addressing questions and concerns for blood donors at bloodworksnw.org/coronavirus. Blood donation takes about an hour from registration to post-donation refreshment. Information about who can donate and where, is available at www.bloodworksnw.org.
